GENERAL PAUL AMBROSE OLIVER

It is always a great pleasure to the members of the National Guard to have veteran officers interest themselves in the welfare of the State service. It not only encourages the men who are voluntarily serving the community, but it has a tendency to create a spirit of enthusiasm. We feel it eminently fitting at this time to review the proud and peculiarly distinguished record of one of Pennsylvania's most distinguished officers, General Paul Ambrose Oliver, and to publish his remarks upon the presentation of the marksmen's decorations to the Ninth Infantry:

General Paul A. Oliver entered the U. S. service January 29, 1862, and was appointed Second Lieutenant of Company E, of the Twelfth New York, February 27, 1862, to rank from Feb. 3, 1862. Promoted First Lieutenant, May 30th, rank from May 17th. Made A. D. C. to Major General Butterfield, commanding 5th Corps Army Potomac, Dec., 1862, to June, 1863. Personal staff of General Geo. G. Meade, commanding Army Potomac, June to September, 1863. A. D. C. General Butterfield, serving jointly with him on staff of General Hooker, commanding 11th and 12th Corps Army Cumberland, Oct., 1863, to March, 1864. Made Captain Company E, 12th New York Volunteers, April 13th, to rank from Jan. 1, 1864. Made Chief of Staff General Butterfield, commanding First Division, 20th Corps Army Cumberland, May to July, 1864. Transferred to Army Potomac and assigned to duty Headquarters Fifth Corps at his own request, his Regiment being consolidated with 5th N. Y. Volunteers, July, 1864. Assigned to duty with General M. R. Patrick, Headquarters Army United States, by order General U. S. Grant, dated Jan. 4, 1865. Detailed April 11, 1865, to assist General Geo. H. Sharpe in paroling Army of Northern Virginia. Declined the majorship, lieutenant colonelcy and colonelcy of 5th New York, in July, 1864. Made Brevet Brigadier General United States Volunteers March 8, 1865. Honorably discharged May 6, 1865.

Note.—Some of the principal battles in which General Oliver took part were the siege of Yorktown, Hanover C. H., Gaines Mills, in which engagement, while commanding his company, he was wounded, Second Bull Run, Va., and Antietam, in which battles he also commanded his company.

On October 12, 1892, Col. F. C. Ainsworth forwarded to the General a medal of honor for distinguished services rendered at the battle of Resaca, Ga., May 15, 1864. General Oliver is a very active member of the Loyal Legion.

GEN. OLIVER'S REMARKS.

We shall never again see men standing shoulder to shoulder in line of battle facing each other. Improved arms have changed all that. A single gatling gun with its 600 shots a minute, would be equal in firing force to that of a brigade of 5,000 men with their muzzle loaders, such as we had in the late Civil War. Men now have to fight with intervals and the soldier, who like an Indian, can drop down and hide behind any protection the ground may afford him, is the best soldier of to-day, and when he shoots he must hit something—in other words, he must be a marksman. Frequent reconnoissances will have to be made to ascertain the weak points of the enemy's line; flank movements will be in order; front attacks such as made in our war, will be impossible. Old soldiers here will remember the front attacks at Fredericksburg, the charge up Mary's Heights, with a loss of ten thousand men, the front attack of Pickett's division of fifteen thousand men on Cemetery Ridge at Gettysburg, with a loss of one-fourth their number in killed and wounded, and finally the front attack by the whole army of the Potomac at Cold Harbor. That splendid old army which like hammered iron, got stronger and tougher by the pounding it got. It had started on Grant's campaign on the 5th of May and fought its way, in the terrible battles of the Wilderness, and Spottsylvania, with a loss of forty thousand men, and now stood ready to renew the contest with its old and skillful foe. Picture if you can, a line six miles long, the old Army of the Potomac, with its colors flying in battle array, ready to charge on the breastworks carefully prepared by Gen. Lee. The charge was to be made along the whole line at once. The time was set at four one-half in the morning. It was a little later when the whole line advanced to the charge. The battle was decided in about fifteen minutes. There was desultory fighting here and there for a little while, but the whole battle was decided in about fifteen minutes. Our loss in the front attack was ten thousand men. When you consider that this attack was made against the old fashioned muzzle loaders you can imagine what the loss would have been if made against modern repeating rifles. In speaking of the Army of the Potomac and matters relating to the Civil War I will here incidentally mention how efficient some of our departments were. In these times of floods and bridge building I will simply mention Gen. McCollum and his construction corps. On the 9th of May, 1864, he built a bridge over Aguia Creek four hundred and fourteen feet long, and eighty-two feet high, ready for trains to pass over, in forty hours, and another bridge in Sherman's army, over the Chattahouchee that summer, seven hundred and seventeen feet long and ninety-two feet high, in four and a half days. At the expense of detaining you a little longer I will relate two incidents or anecdotes, under my old commander, that courteous gentleman, that brave and able soldier, the type of a graduate of West Point of the old school, Gen. George G. Meade, who gave the Confederates their Waterloo at Gettysburg. On the afternoon of the second day at Gettysburg, a large number of stragglers from the third corps suddenly appeared on the Taneytown road, near our headquarters. Nearly all the staff and the escort rushed among them to drive them back. General Meade got on his horse and rode to the front, followed by five of his personal aids. He immediately ordered up Gen. Newton, who appeared in advance of his troops. Gen. Newton pulled out a flask of whiskey, and whilst both he and Gen. Meade took a swallow, a shell aimed at them, burst near and spattered them with earth. Just then a rebel deserter appeared, who told Gen. Meade that there was only a thin line in front of him, and that he could easily pierce it. Gen. Meade then ordered an advance, and giving the spurs to his horse waved his hat and headed the charge. Just then McAntee of Gen. Sharpe's provost marshal's department told Gen. Meade that Hill was massed in strong force in his front. Meade then ordered the men to halt, which was finally effected, but it was hard, as they were cheering and already advancing to the charge. I always thought that this bold and plucky action of Gen. Meade at this time had a good influence on the troops and went far to give the men confidence in their commander. On the afternoon of the third day, during the heavy part of the cannonading, whilst sitting on the little grass plot in front of the small house where our headquarters were, half a dozen ambulances galloped past us towards our right, in the direction of Rickett's battery. The horse of one of the ambulances was hit by a shell on the left hip, but the horse never slackened its pace or changed its direction, but, in company with its mate, galloped up the hill, with its leg dangling after it. There was discipline for you! Occasionally we would hear the report and see by the white smoke that a caisson had blown up. The firing was horrible. Gen. Meade would call a staff officer occasionally and send him with orders to some part of the field. The artillery on the ridge was to be relieved and Gen. Meade called Maj. Warner, uncle of your townsman, Mr. Chase, to order up fresh batteries from the reserve artillery of Gen. Tyler. The firing was terrific, and as I saw Warner get on his horse and quietly ride through that zone of fire, as if on parade, I expected every moment to see blood on his body. Finally Gen. Hunt, chief of artillery, rode up and asked Meade if he could not stop firing, for he thought if we stopped firing the enemy would, and then make the charge. Meade consented. Whilst sitting on the grass, Meade laughed at our sitting down and asked us if we thought we were any safer there, and then related an anecdote of the Mexican War, where an artilleryman crouched behind the wheel of a gun carriage, and had hardly got there when a shell struck the wheel and killed him. Meade was the only one who stood upright. The firing was so heavy that it was found impossible for staff officers from different parts of the line to communicate with headquarters, and we had to establish new quarters near little Round Top.

Col. Dougherty, I desire to compliment you on the fine appearance of your regiment. By untiring zeal, close and minute attention to details, and extraordinary efforts and hard work, you have brought the regiment to a state of efficiency in drill and in marksmanship which make it rank among the very first in the State. You have established a spirit of emulation in officers and men and engendered an esprit de corps in the regiment, which cannot but be fruitful of the best results. I trust that under your fostering care the regiment will before long obtain to such a degree of excellence that it will be the first in efficiency, marksmanship and drill of the National Guard of the State of Pennsylvania.

And now let me turn to the marksmen of the regiment who are to receive their badges to-night. The importance of training the soldier in marksmanship can hardly be overestimated. The rapid fire of the present arm makes the expenditure of ammunition so easy that unless men are trained in the proper use of their weapon it will be impossible to supply them with ammunition. Unless a the army. It is with signal pleasure, therefore, that I see the record of your soldier can hit something he is only in the way and is a burden and expense to marksmanship to-night.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 11

For the benefit of our subscribers we herewith give a reprint of General Orders No. 11

OFFICE OF THE GENERAL INSPECTOR OF RIFLE PRACTICE.

PITTSBURG, April 12, 1902.

Circular No. 1.

The current season for rifle practice will open May 1st, and will close October 31, 1902.

It was hoped that an exchange of arms would have been effected prior to May 1st, 1902, and that a new or improved arm would have been used during the current season for rifle practice. The contemplated exchange of arms depends upon the result of legislation now pending in the Congress of the United States. Should this legislation be enacted the exchange may be effected during the year. Until this exchange is made Rifle Practice will be conducted with the present arm.

Practice with the regulation Springfield rifle calibre .45 will be required of every officer and enlisted man in the infantry arm of the service and the Naval Force of Pennsylvania, except Brigade Bands; with the carbine and revolver in the cavalry arm of the service. Officers and enlisted men in batteries with the revolver, and may qualify with the Springfield rifle calibre .45. General officers and officers of the General staff will qualify with either the Springfield rifle calibre .45, or regulation revolver calibre .38, or both.

An allowance of $75.00 for maintenance of rifle ranges will be made to each company of infantry and troop of cavalry that practices fifty-three officers and men, to each battery of artillery that practices seventy-two officers and men, and to each division Naval Force of Pennsylvania that practices forty-seven officers and men; and where a less number have practiced the commutation will be reduced in proportion.

If any company of infantry, troop of cavalry, battery of artillery, or division Naval Force of Pennsylvania fails to qualify as marksmen seventy-five per cent. of its entire membership (unless satisfactory reasons are shown for such failure), it shall be considered so lacking in efficiency as to warrant its disbandment. In cases where men fail to present themselves at the range for practice between May 1st and October 31, 1902, commanding officers shall, at the close of the season, unless there are extenuating circumstances, prefer charges against them for neglect of duty.

All officers are directed to impress upon their men the importance of rifle practice or revolver practice. Sighting and aiming drills as prescribed in "Blunt's Instructions in Rifle and Carbine Firing" should be given new recruits who are to qualify with rifle or carbine before they are sent on the range.

Sighting and aiming drills should include general information in rifle practice, not merely the giving of commands. The soldier should be instructed as to the errors likely to be committed and how to avoid or correct them. The terms used in rifle practice should be thoroughly explained.

RANGES.

It is important that all ranges be properly equipped and made absolutely safe. The regimental inspectors of rifle practice will visit and inspect the range of each company in the regiment, and see that it is properly equipped, distances correct, the markers thoroughly protected, and the range made perfectly safe. Commanding officers of artillery and troops of cavalry will take the same precaution. Regimental commanders are authorized to provide transportation for this purpose. No per diem pay will be allowed. Inspectors of rifle practice to whom transportation is furnished to inspect rifle ranges must make an official report of each range inspected and forward same through regimental headquarters to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, Col. F. K. Patterson, 237 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh. When transportation is used and no report made, the amount paid for such transportation will be charged against the annual aallowance to headquarters of the regiment.

TARGETS.

The new "Pennsylvania Targets" manufactured at the State Arsenal can be procured upon requisition. These are sliding targets with improvements over any now in use, and can be enclosed, locked and protected from the weather when not in use. The cost delivered on cars at Harrisburg will be $52.00 for the "A" target for use at 100 and 200 yards, and $55.00 for the "B" target for use at 500 and 600 yards. The "B" target can be used for all distances by changing the paper targets. These targets when procured upon requisition may be charged against the annual allowance to companies or paid for in cash. For additional information and cut of target see Adjutant General's Report, 1896, page 11.

ELLIPTICAL BULLS EYE TARGETS.

Complying with a generally expressed preference on the part of both officers and men and especially those deeply interested in Rifle Practice the Elliptical Bulls Eye paper target will be issued and used in Rifle Practice for the season of 1902.

The target for 100 and 200 yards is four feet by six feet in size. For 500 and 600 yards, six feet by six feet. Five of each size will be sent direct to company commanders, for which no charge will be made. Additional quantities can be procured on requisition at ten cents each.

FIRST SERGEANT MARTIN O'LAUGHLIN, COMPANY "D," FOURTH INFANTRY, LOCATED AT ALLENTOWN, PA.
[34 YEARS SERVICE]

INSTRUCTIONS ON THE RANGE.

In constructing the range, company officers are expected to recognize their responsibility as to its availability, correct distances and safety; also the conduct of the men while at practice. Regimental inspectors of rifle practice will see that company officers and range-masters are thoroughly informed as to the regulations contained in this order. No soldier will be allowed to fire over the range until he has been carefully instructed and made familiar with the rifle.

PRACTICE.

Men who have not previously qualified as marksmen will be taken to the range for practice and must be accompanied by a proficient instructor and not allowed to fire over the range unless so accompanied. Those who have never before qualified as marksmen will be required to shoot at three ranges—100, 200 and 500 yards—and will be allowed five shots and no more in one entry at each range, beginning always at the 100 yard, and will not be permitted to fire at a longer range until they have shown a reasonable proficiency at the next shorter range.

POSITIONS.

At 100 and 200 yards the position will be standing off hand. No artificial rest for rifle or carbine will be allowed, or for any part of the body, except that the left elbow may be held against the breast. No use will be made of the gun-sling which will be strapped tightly to the barrel, or only sufficiently loosened to permit the free passage of the hand between it and the stock. At 500 and 600 yards the position will be lying down. At 500 yards the firing will be from the prone position. At 600 yards any position lying down, either prone, on side or back, except that no form or rest for the person or for the rifle other than may be afforded by the body or arm will be allowed. The gun-sling may be used in any manner in connection with the body or arm, but with no extraneous objects in steadying the rifle or absorbing the recoil.

THIRD-CLASS MARKSMEN.

Recruits who shall have enlisted since November 30, 1901, and who succeed in making a total score of 30 points at the three ranges, 100, 200 and 500 yards, five consecutive shots at each range, and no more, shall be rated as third-class marksmen and may be considered as having qualified for the season. Third-class marksmen with a total score of 30 or more may re-enter in the same season for qualification in the second class or better. Third-class marksmen will be required to qualify as second-class marksmen or better every succeeding year they remain in the service and when they have first qualified as second-class marksmen or better a first year's decoration will be issued them.

If recruits firing at 100, 200 and 500 yard ranges make an aggregate score of 25 or more at the 200 and 500 yard ranges, the soldier may elect to accept the score and qualification as a marksman according to the score made, which would be that of either first or second-class marksmen. If so, no re-entry will be permitted and he will be considered as having qualified for the year. He is privileged, however, regardless of the score at 200 and 500 yard ranges to qualify as a third-class marksman and re-enter for second class or better.

SECOND AND FIRST-CLASS MARKSMEN.

For qualifying as second or first-class marksmen, five consecutive shots are allowed at 200 yards, and five at 500 yards. Re-entries are allowed until a total score of 25 at the two ranges is made. When a score of 25 and less than 40 is once made the marksman is qualified for the year. If it be under 40 he is rated as a second-class marksman; if 40 or more at the two ranges he is rated as a first-class marksman. The 100 yard range must not be used in qualifying second or first-class marksmen.

SHARPSHOOTERS.

Any man who shall have qualified as a first-class marksman in the season of 1901 may enter in the season of 1902 for qualification as a sharpshooter. Any man who qualifies in the season of 1902 as a first-class marksman for the first time may re-enter in the same season for qualification as a sharpshooter.

Cavalrymen who have qualified as first-class marksmen with the carbine in the season of 1901 or 1902 may enter for qualification as a sharpshooter using the carbine at 200, 500 and 600 yard ranges, and a total score of 62 at the three ranges will qualify a cavalryman as a sharpshooter.

For qualifying as a sharpshooter with the regulation Springfield rifle calibre .45, five consecutive shots are allowed at 200 yards, five

CAPTAIN CHARLES H. HARVEY

Captain Charles H. Harvey, who is prominently mentioned for State Senatorial honors, was born in Philadelphia, October 31, 1868. He is of Quaker origin and belongs to one of the oldest families in Pennsylvania. His grandfather, the late Edward Harvey, was Squire of Lower Merion from 1832 until the time of his death in 1858. His great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather fought in the Revolution. He is descended from Dr. Edward Jones, who came over in the good "Ship Lyon," which landed at Pencoyd August 14, 1682, two months prior to the landing of William Penn. His ancestors were among the founders of Lower Merion Friends' Meeting-House, the oldest church in Pennsylvania, built in 1695. Captain Harvey is the son of the late James B. Harvey, and was educated at the Pennsylvania State College, Bellefonte, Pa. Later, he studied law in the office of J. Morgan Jennison, but finally took up the study of medicine, graduating from Hahnemann in April, 1893.

Dr. Harvey began his military career by enlisting in Keystone Battery A, January 10, 1887; he was appointed Hospital Steward,

CAPTAIN CHARLES H. HARVEY
THIRD INFANTRY

August, 1891; Second Lieutenant and Quartermaster, Feb. 18, 1895. His commission expired January 17, 1898. He was elected Captain Company "B," Nineteenth Infantry, now Company "K," Third Regiment Infantry, October 3, 1898. Captain Harvey is very popular with his Company and in the Regiment. He is classed among the best shots in the State; his company being also noted for its expert shooting.

In civil life he is President of the 34th Ward Sectional School Board, and is a member of the State Board of Health, the Germantown Medical Club, Saturday Night Club of Microscopists, Home Country Medical Society, Philadelphia Sovereign Consistory of Sublime Princes of the Royal Secret, 32d degree, A. A. S. R., St. John's Commandery No. 4, K. T., Lu Lu Temple, A. O. N. M. S., Oriental Lodge, 385, F. and A. M., Oriental Chapter, R. A. C., 183, Fairview Council, Jr. O. U. A. E. Church.

at 500 yards, and five at 600 yards. If a total score of 67 or more is made at the three ranges the marksman is then qualified as a sharpshooter and will not be permitted to re-enter for the purpose of making a higher score. The firing at the three ranges must be done on the same day. No practice will be indulged in by the marksman after he announces his intention to qualify, except the two warming shots allowed at each range. The warming shots must be the first two shots fired at each range, and the succeeding five shots the shots for qualification.

A first-class marksman of the season of 1901 and 1902 shooting for a sharpshooter's score and failing on first trial will be allowed but one re-entry, and must begin again at the 200 yard range.

shots to be the score. Before shooting at the range the soldier must state whether or not he intends to fire warming shots. If warming shots are not used, then only five shots can be fired. Warming shots are optional and can be used at either range.

PISTOL PRACTICE.

The .38 calibre Double Action Colt's Revolver having been adopted as the regulation revolver for commissioned officers and for the artillery and cavalry arms of the service, (see General Orders No. 11, A. G. O., dated April 14, 1897), officers are urged to procure a revolver and familiarize themselves with the weapon, and to qualify as marksmen.

MAJOR ALBERT L. WILLIAMS
FIRST INFANTRY

PRACTICE AT RANGES.

It is understood that practice may be indulged in from time to time during the season to an extent that the ammunition issued or purchased may permit. Men should be encouraged to practice. The purchase of ammunition to the extent of 2,000 rounds per season will be a proper disbursement from the annual allowance to companies, and requisition for ammunition in addition to the allowance for the season (5,000 rounds), will be honored and the amount of the same charged to annual allowance.

WARMING OR SIGHTING SHOTS.

When a soldier declares his intention to qualify as a first or second-class marksman or sharpshooter, he will not be permitted to fire more than seven shots at each range—the two first to be warming or sighting shots, and not to be a part of the score; the last five

For qualifying with the revolver five consecutive shots are allowed at 25 yards, five at 50 yards, and five at 75 yards, off hand without artificial rest, at the "A" target used for rifle and carbine firing on the range at 200 yards, and in order to qualify as a marksman a score of 50 or more must be made. Those qualifying as marksmen with revolver may re-enter to qualify as Expert.

As time is an important element in revolver practice, an officer or enlisted man who can make the qualifying score firing the five shots at each range within fifteen seconds will be known as an "Expert."

If each score of five shots shall have been fired within fifteen seconds a certificate of the fact shall be endorsed on the back of the score-sheet and signed by both the marksman and the scorer.

Every qualifying score with the revolver will be recorded on a separate official sheet certified to by the marksman himself and the scorer, and filed with the regimental inspector of rifle practice, or commanding officer of battery or troop of cavalry within two weeks after the score is made.

The regulation as to declaration, and warming or sighting shots in rifle qualifications will apply to revolver qualifications also.

The regimental inspectors of rifle practice or commanding officer of battery or troop of cavalry will make a return of all revolver qualification scores of the regiment, battery or troop on a company return blank and forward the same through intermediate headquarters to the General Inspector of Rifle Practice with the other returns.

Officers will be required to furnish their own ammunition for pistol practice, and should purchase with care, as all .38 calibre cartridges do not fit Colt's .38 calibre revolvers.

Revolver ammunition will be issued from the Arsenal for pistol practice or qualification at the rate of $10.00 per thousand in lots of not less than 100 rounds. Money for same must accompany requisition.

Requisitions for decorations will be forwarded with the returns.

The "New Army Double Action Self Cocking Revolver, 6" blue, Model of 1894, .38 calibre, central fire," has been adopted for the officers of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and for the artillery and cavalry arms of the service, (G. O. No. 11, A. G. O., April 14th, 1897). Officers should provide themselves with this arm without delay. For their convenience and to secure them the lowest price, arrangements are made to purchase them in quantity and furnish them to officers from the State Arsenal at $12.00 each, including holster. Orders for revolvers to be accompanied by check or money order, drawn to the order of the Adjutant General. In ordering, officers will be careful to give name in full, and should they so desire the name will be engraved on the revolver at an additional cost of three cents per letter.

RECORDS AND RETURNS.

Every shot fired on the range, for the purpose of qualification, whether a warming shot or for purpose of qualifying, must be recorded on score sheets and in a book kept for that purpose.

Every qualifying score in first, second and third-classes will be recorded on a separate official sheet certified to by the marksman himself and the scorer, and filed with the Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice, the Cavalry, Artillery or Naval Force officer detailed for that purpose, within two weeks after the score is made, or it will not be accepted and the soldier will be considered as having failed to qualify.

NOTES

The Wheatley Cadets, Company "D," Sixth Infantry, under Captain Whitaker, are making rapid strides in the reorganization of the Company. On the 17th of April a civil organization was formed, its purpose being to promote the best interests of the Company, to recruit a desirable class of men, and to eventually secure a sufficient Company fund, with which to improve the Armory and to ultimately gain its absolute control.

Reorganization is again being discussed. For the good of the Guard it is hoped that the reorganization will be either accomplished at once or dropped. Officers hesitate to spend the money necessary to keep up their equipment because they do not know when or where the reorganization bugaboo will strike. At least one Captain has refused election to Major because of rumors that his regiment was one marked to be mustered out and he preferred being a live Captain to a mustered out Major.

PHILADELPHIA AND READING'S NEW DEPARTURE

Hourly Trains between Philadelphia and New York.

To improve its passenger service this spring, the Philadelphia & Reading Railway is making many additions to its schedule.

Beginning with the new time-table, effective about May 18th, the Company proposes to inaugurate hourly service of fast express trains between Reading Terminal, Philadelphia and New York. These trains will run etirely independent of the Royal Blue Line Service, and therefore will obviate all change of cars, waiting for connections, etc., at Wayne Junction.

These trains will leave the Terminal Stations, both in Philadelphia and New York, weekdays, at 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 A. M., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00 and 7.00 P. M.

The equipment of these trains will be thoroughly up to date, solid vestibuled coaches and Pullman Parlor cars, provided with buffet service when needed. While the running time of these trains has not been definitely determined upon, they will undoubtedly keep up the Philadelphia & Reading standard of as fast speed as is compatible with safety and comfort.

It is expected this new service will be patronized. Persons will not need to consult time-tables, being assured of catching a fast train each hour of the business day.

THE following is from the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin:

"The attitude of the First Brigade in the matter of building up rifle teams is far from sportsmanlike and if persisted in will eventually destroy the State competitions. It is commendable to make every legitimate effort to build up their teams, but to attempt to do so by destroying the teams of their competitors is something the First Brigade need not be proud of doing and cannot afford. A well known First Brigade officer has made overtures to Moore, of the Thirteenth, Gamble and Dunn, of the Eighth, and probably to other members of the Third Brigade team, to go to Philadelphia and enter the First Brigade. Still other officers of lesser rank, have been after one or more of the same men to enter regimental teams belonging to the First Brigade. If this effort to coax away the members of competing teams is not stopped and stopped at once the "country regiments" might as well withdraw from the State competitions, because they will only be used as feeders for the more wealthy and more influential "City regiments." If Philadelphia is not big enough to supply the necessary shooting material, let the First Brigade officers get it somewhere else without trying to disrupt their competitors."

A similar article recently appeared in the Pottsville Republican.

THE parade of the First Regiment Infantry and its famous Veteran Corps in honor of their 41st anniversary was, as it always is, the military dress parade of the season. Colonel Bowman's "First Foot" has thousands of admirers in Philadelphia and all along the line was received with vociferous applause. Of late years, the musical organization of this splendid command has grown into the proportion and popularity of Gilmore's, Innes' and other noted New York bands. The passing in review at the Union League was well executed. While the alignments were good, several of the officers failed to salute and in several instances, company commanders failed to turn their heads toward the reviewing officer. General Schall, accompanied by his staff in full dress uniform, received the review. Admiral Schley was also present as the invited guest of the Veteran Corps. Colonel Dougherty, of the Ninth Infantry, was the special guest of Colonel Bowman. Several other distinguished soldiers and statesmen were on the reviewing stand.

BATTERY A will be inspected on Monday evening, April 28th, by Colonel Sheldon Potter, who will thoroughly test the new Colt's Automatic Gun. It will be remembered that an entire section of these guns jammed at the last encampment of Captain Warburton's command and there has been some doubt expressed as to their reliability. Colonel Potter has strongly recommended the adoption of Hotchkiss 2 pounders for Battery C (Captain Bean). This command will be inspected at Phoenixville on May 10th and Battery B, located at Pittsburg and commanded by Captain Rees, will go through the inspection ordeal on May 12th. The armament of this Battery, for the present, at least, will remain as it is, 3.2 inch breech loaders.

THE review and reception of the Second Regiment, which took place on Monday, April 21st, was a very enjoyable affair and the ceremonies were gone through in a very creditable manner. Colonel Hartung took the parade. General Schall was the reviewing officer, accompanied by his staff.

AN inspecting officer meets with some amusing, though well meant responses to his questions. A sentry in one Eighth Regiment company declared that at night he would "exercise the greatest violence between retreat and broad daylight."

THE inspection of the Third Brigade is drawing to a close. The end of April completed all except the Ninth Regiment. Beginning with May 1, this regiment will pass under the eye of the inspector.

THE change in target for qualification purposes will meet with universal approval.

Personal Mention

Lieut. Col. Joseph B. Hutchinson, Eighth Regiment, has been appointed Chief of Police of Harrisburg. He has all the qualifications for an excellent Chief. His appointment was opposed by a committee representing labor organizations, upon the ground that he was a member of the National Guard.

Capt. Barclay Fisher, commanding Company D, Eighth Regiment, recently announced his intention to resign because of the pressure of business. Strong efforts have been made to induce him to retain his commission and present indications are that he will remain at the head of that excellent Company.

Colonel Hoffman has decided to put in practice at once the men who composed his last year's rifle team and give them the benefit of every opportunity for improvement. He will also give every man in the regiment every facility to shoot his way on that team. Lieutenant Bergstresser expects to have a winning team.

Captain Francis Marion Bean, Battery C, contemplates leaving the service owing to pressure of business. In the event of Captain Bean's resigning, it is more than likely that the members will select an outside candidate. The name of Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant Joseph W. Thompson, of Mt. Clare, has been mentioned in connection therewith.

Lieut. Frank T. McNarney, Tenth U. S. Cavalry, formerly Captain of Company H, Twelfth Infantry, N. G. P., is home on sick leave. He was a Sergeant in Company H, Tenth U. S. Infantry at Santiago and received a certificate of bravery in the face of the enemy for his work in that fight. He went to the Philippines as a Lieutenant of Volunteers as soon as the Spanish-American War was over and his work there won him a Lieutenancy in the regular cavalry.

Dr. Joseph C. Reifsnyder, Assistant Surgeon of the Twelfth Regiment at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, has just been promoted to Surgeon in the Army, with the rank of Major. At the close of the war he became a contract surgeon and was sent to the Philippines. He saw hard service with the Twenty-second Infantry during the search through Northern Luzon for Aguinaldo. His services during this campaign received special mention in orders. In November, 1900, he was sent home with sick soldiers and was stationed at West Point until May 1, 1901, when he was appointed a Captain and Surgeon and ordered to return to the Phillippines. He has since then been stationed in Southern Luzon.

Lieut. Colonel J. Frank Supplee, of the Fourth Maryland Infantry, has been closely identified with the National Guard for several years past. We are glad to note that the Colonel has made application for membership in the National Guard Association.

On their 41st anniversary, Major Charles S. Turnbull, Surgeon of the First Regiment, was justly proud of the fine sword and belt he wore, presented to him a few days ago by the Old Guard of Company A. At his home on the evening of April 14th, with a few well chosen words, Captain Winfield Margerum, presented the sword. on the blade of which is etched the following inscription: "Presented to Major Charles Smith Turnbull, by the Old Guard of A Company, First Regiment, N. G. Pa., April 19, 1902." The belt was presented by Comrade Alfred F. Watch, the entire affair being a complete surprise to the Major.

NOTES

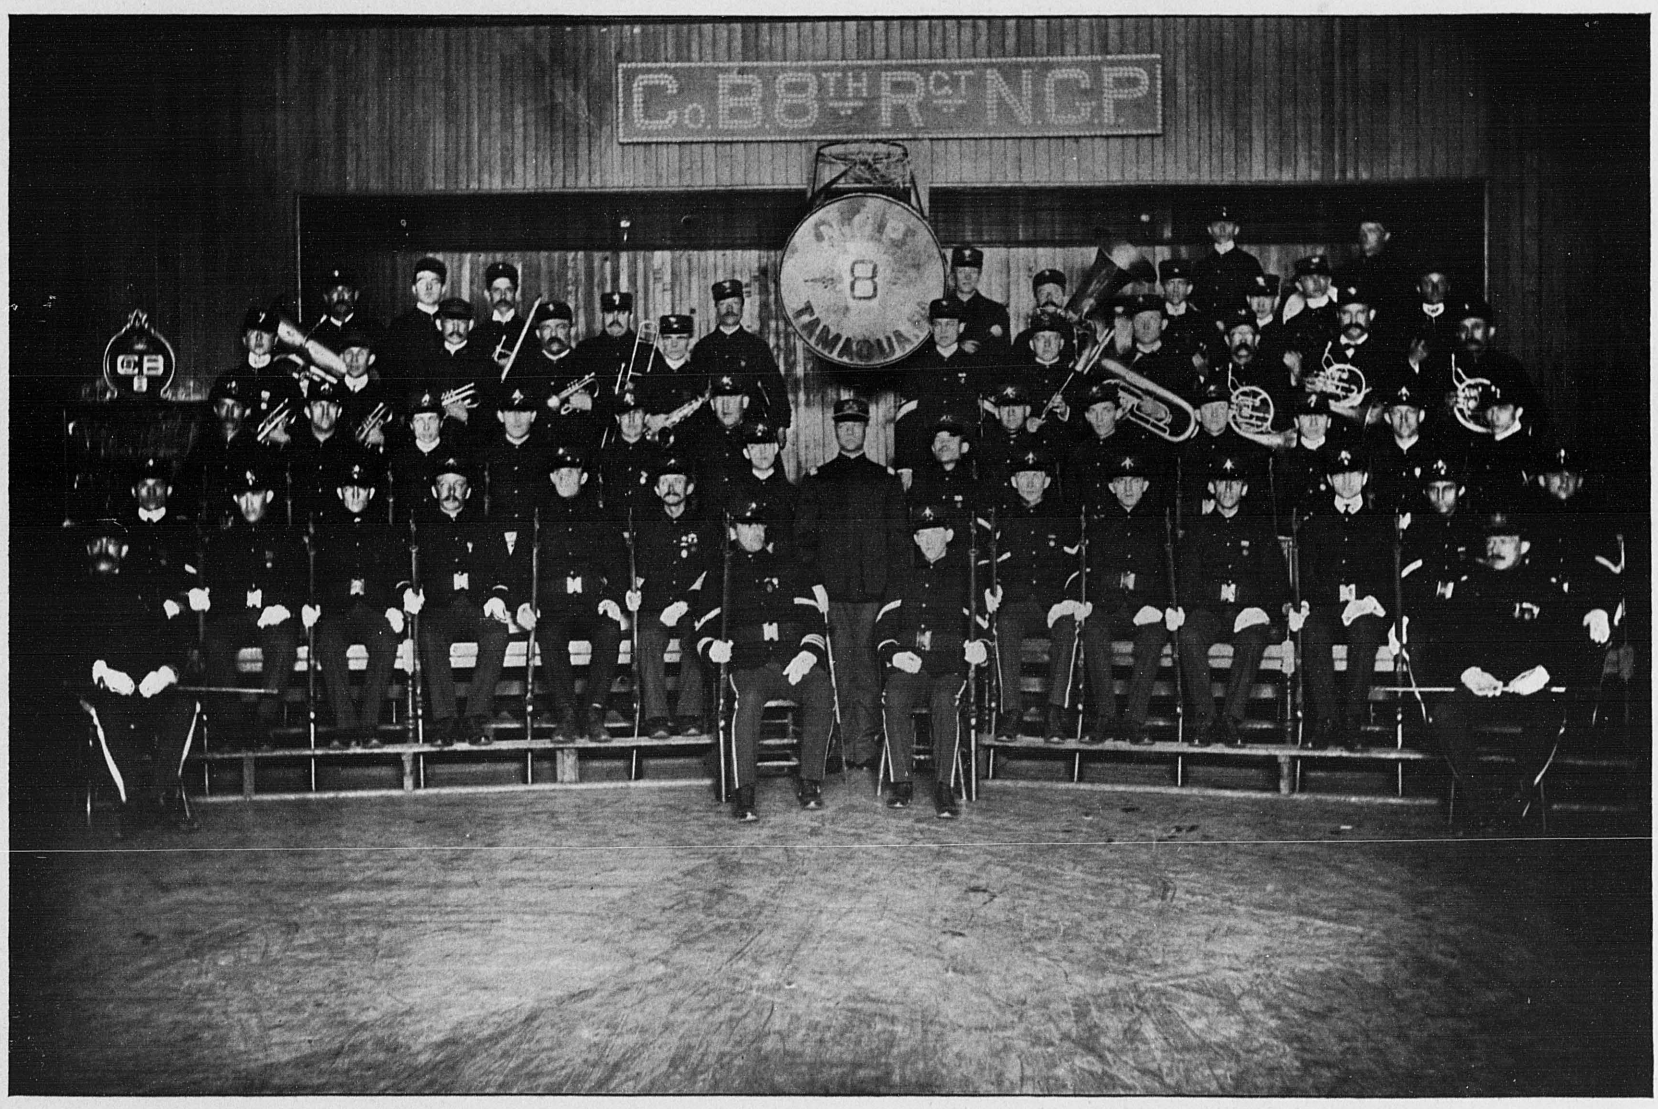
Printed reports of rifle practice for the year 1901 have been issued by the Fourth, Eighth and Twelfth Regiments.

Company K, Twelfth Regiment, held a bazar at its Armory, at Sunbury, April 16, 17 and 18. General Gobin was present one evening.

The Twelfth Regiment will lose one of last year's rifle team. Two of its members are now commissioned officers and consequently but one can remain on the team.

Lieutenant Carter is sparing no effort to put the Thirteenth Regiment back in the position in rifle practice and competitions which it held for so many years.

Extensive preparations are being made to parade the Third Infantry on May 5th, in honor of the fourth anniversary of its entering the U. S. service in the Spanish-American War.



COMPANY 'B." EIGHTH INFANTRY, CAPTAIN EDW. M. B. SHEPP AND MEMBERS OF THE REGIMENTAL BAND, LOCATED AT TAMAQUA

The determination to send a team to Sea Girt in the Fall makes necessary the furnishing of Krag's to the regimental teams. It is a waste of money to send a team to Sea Girt armed with the old Springfields.

A non-commissioned Board of Examination has been established, composed of the first sergeant, two sergeants and three corporals. The examination, of course, is preliminary and the man making the highest record before this Board is recommended by the company commander for promotion.

The Rifle Range, which is perhaps the best in the regiment, is receiving a thorough overhauling and will be open for practice May 1st. Captain Whitaker intends to bivouac the Company on the range site for several days during May, taking up the routine camp work as well as target practice.

FOURTH INFANTRY NOTES

Company "G" of the Fourth Infantry has the "proud distinction" of having the smallest Armory in the State. It is said that a platoon of eight front can scarcely maneuvre in the drill shed. Notwithstanding this handicap, the Inspector's reports in the Adjutant General's Department show them to be a well drilled organization with a remarkably high standard of efficiency.

The Company was organized on the 9th day of January, 1877. Lt. Col. John P. Earnest, of the Fourth Infantry, and the present captain of the Company, James W. Umbenhauer, are the only two original members left in the service. The Company was first assigned to the Eighth Regiment and afterwards transferred to the Fourth. The year they were organized, through their personal efforts, the present Armory was built, which was the first one in the State owned by an individual Company. An illustration of this "fortress" appears on this page.

A committee has recently been appointed to devise ways and means for the construction of an improved Armory. Lieut. Robert R. Miller, Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice, is very much interested in the project and it is expected that the many friends of the Company, living in the immediate district, will assist in the undertaking.

When the Governor called for troops during the riots of 1877, Company "G" was one of the first to respond and immediately proceeded to Harrisburg, where they were ordered to guard the Arsenal. During these riots they saw severe service at Rockville and Pittsburg. The Company also served for eighteen days during the Homestead strike of 1892 and for nineteen days during the Hazleton strike in 1897. During the Spanish-American War, while attached to the Porto Rican Expedition, they were drawn up in line of battle, one mile north of Gauynuma, but were withdrawn when orders to cease hostilities were received August 13, 1898. The Company was again in active service for thirty-nine days during the Shenandoah and Tamaqua strike of 1900.

It will be seen by this brief history, that since their organization, they have responded to every call of the State and Nation to uphold law and order, and are therefore deserving and we hope will receive the hearty support of their many friends in securing modern quarters.

SERGEANT MARTIN O'LAUGHLIN

The members of the Fourth Regiment are justly proud of First Sergeant Martin O'Laughlin, of Company "D," who, on January 10, 1902, ended a long and honorable career of thirty-four years as a member of the National Guard. On the evening of this day, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his long and faithful service, the field, line and staff officers, and the members of Company "D," presented him with a handsome gold medal. Colonel O'Neill made the presentation speech and feelingly referred to Sergeant O'Laughlin's retirement, whose patriotic devotion to the cause of his country and the State is excelled by no one in Pennsylvania.

The Sergeant is not only one of the oldest, but also one of the most popular men in the State Guard and he highly appreciates the compliment of his comrades. His exact age is not divulged, but it is known that he has been "forty-five" for some years past. He acquired this age when the National Guard was at Mt. Gretna in 1898 to be mustered into the U. S. service. The Sergeant was eager to go to the front and realized that something must be done to give him a youthful appearance. A tonsorial artist in the Company brought about this Faust-like transformation. However, the U. S. inspecting officer suspected all was not right and asked him, "Aren't you too old to enter the service?" To this the Sergeant replied, "A man is never too old to enter the service of his country," and he was accepted. During the Civil War he served in the U. S. Navy. He was a member of the Allen Continentals in 1869 when this organization became a part of Company "D," Fourth Regiment, and five years later joined the Allen Rifles, now Company "D," Fourth Regiment, and has since been a member, serving under all its commanders, Captains Good, Nagle, Roney, Reichard, Mickley and Spangler.

For the benefit of the Captain in the Second Brigade, who made inquiry regarding a blank form for Summary Court purposes, we, herewith, give a reprint of the charge and Specification Blank and the Marshal's warrant used in the Third Infantry:
